The all-new Lexus RX makes its European debut at the Frankfurt motor show, leading a display that captures the brand's commitment to striking new design and the effective application of innovative, advanced technologies.

The new Lexus RX

The fourth generation of Lexus's global best-selling model appears in Europe for the first time ahead of its market launch in January. The new RX has a striking design, influenced by the NX crossover, and will be available in the UK in two versions – the full hybrid RX 450h and turbo petrol-powered RX 200t. Initial UK-specific details are available here; an international press pack is available here.

New Sport grades for Lexus CT and IS

New Sport versions of both the Lexus CT 200h full hybrid hatchback and the IS 200t and 300h saloons are showcased at Frankfurt. The new models add eye-catching exterior and cabin detailing and, for the CT, a new contrast two-tone paintwork option. UK specific information is available here.

Revised GS range

The new Lexus GS 200t is another Lexus newcomer at the Frankfurt show. Although this model will not be sold in the UK, it heralds a new look for the GS saloon that will be adopted across the full range, including the full hybrid GS 300h and GS 450h. The revised GS, with a stronger front-end styling, new bi-LED headlamp units and new rear end detailing, will be introduced at the end of the year. The model will also adopt the new Lexus Safety System+. International information is available here.
